

BIO

Emily Gabriele commonly known as “EG” is a singer/songwriter hailing from central New Jersey – if you believe there is a central Jersey. As a teenager, she taught herself the guitar. Drawing from influences like The Beatles, Bill Withers, Fleetwood Mac & John Mayer, her music is infused with blues roots and a soulful feel.

EG currently resides in New York City and frequents Los Angeles & Nashville. With travel as a constant in her life, inspiration runs rampant. She released her first project, the "EG EP", in Spring of 2013. Since then she's been steadily writing songs that stylistically tap into multiple genres.

Her most recent project, "Special Delivery", has a tracklist comprised of 8, personal & catchy tracks. EG recorded the project in a small studio in East Williamsburg, Brooklyn with producer & musician, Matthew Basile. Working closely alongside Basile & fellow singer/songwriter Gregg Allen, the project is a compilation of heartfelt earworms.
